WHAT IS ENERGETIC KINESIOLOGY?

Energetic Kinesiology is a truly amazing modality supported by an extensive body of research, using non-invasive, holistic approaches to support the health and wellbeing of the body, mind and soul. Drawing on both the Eastern and Western healing traditions, Kinesiologists use muscle monitoring, a method of accessing the body's innate biofeedback systems (among other tools), to listen to the body and uncover areas of stress and imbalance. Kinesiologists then identify ways to assist the client to restore this balance and in so doing, open the door to wellness and vitality.

SUBJECTS

Introduction to Energetic Kinesiology Theory and Practice

Kinesiology combines the ancient Eastern philosophies of acupuncture (without the use of needles) with the Western understanding of anatomy and physiology to enable practitioners to treat the whole person. This introductory subject will provide you with a solid foundation on which you can build the skills to become a Kinesiology practitioner. You will be introduced to energetic healing techniques which encompass all aspects of the human being: Mind, Body and Spirit.

Subtle Anatomy (Energy Systems)

In this subject, we'll explore the systems of anatomy beyond the physical. You will develop an understanding of the major concepts of Oriental Healing and the different perspectives of Western and Oriental approaches. You will gain knowledge of the main meridians in the body and the interrelationship between all parts of the body, as well as the theoretical aspects of energy - qi and its connection to the mind, emotions and the body's state of ill health. Finally, you will also be introduced to energy scanning as it applies to the meridians.

Anatomy & Physiology Body Structure

The above subject will equip you with knowledge of the structure, general function and organisation of the human body. The subject begins with an introduction to the anatomy and physiology of the human body, then looks into the inner workings of our cells, tissues and organs, followed by the structure of the skeletal system, the structure and functions of our bones, joints, and muscular tissue. Finally we explore the muscular system by introducing the major skeletal muscle groups of the body and how these muscles work together to produce movement.

Advanced Kinesiology Theory and Practice

This subject will develop your fundamental Kinesiology skills to enable you to identify the signs and symptoms of stress and possibilities for overcoming stressors of all kinds that affect the body's systems and structure. The subject will also introduce you to a range of additional techniques and processes that can be integrated easily into your current knowledge of Kinesiology which will enhance your skills and enable you to provide a more holistic approach to your Kinesiology balancing.

Body Systems - An Introduction

This subject will enable you to understand the principles and mechanisms involved in physiological function and give you an appreciation of how changes in function can lead to breakdown in health. You will gain an overall understanding of the structure and key functions of all body systems.

Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) Nutrition

This subject will introduce you to the concept of Oriental dietary therapy, which is the appropriate selection of foods and the combination of Chinese herbal traditional medicinal foods. You will learn about diet basics, cooking techniques and properties of food, and how to recognize different symptomatic patterns and problems that require unique dietary solutions.

Introduction to Psychoneuroimmunology

This subject outlines the research, evidence, mechanisms and practice of relaxation techniques for a range of chronic physical and psychological conditions. It highlights studies in psychoneuroimmunology (PNI) as the scientific framework to understand the benefits of diaphragmatic breathing, progressive muscle relaxation, guided imagery and passive movements and how to apply them in your Kinesiology practice. Students will benefit personally and professionally from the practice of evidence based relaxation techniques and will be able to apply these highly effective techniques with their clients.

Australian Bush Flower Essences

Learn to apply and prescribe the subtle healing system of Australian flower essences for treating negative states of mind and emotions.

Applied Kinesiology Practice

This review subject is essential preparation for Clinical Practice (Kinesiology) in order to develop confidence to become a skilled Kinesiologist through practice & consolidation of the kinesiology skills and knowledge learned in earlier subjects. Students will practice Kinesiology assessment and treatment as well as monitor and evaluate treatments, in this highly practical subject.

Clinical Practice (Kinesiology)

Students will put the skills and knowledge learned over the course of their studies into practice, by providing professional Kinesiology consultations to clients, in the Nature Care Wellness Centre (a clinic open to members of the public) under the supervision of a Clinical Supervisor.

Additional studies include -

Plan and Manage a Healthcare Business
